To Whom It May Concern,

Thank you for your efforts to host this conference in a timely manner. I understand that you all are trying to best determine at this crucial time ways that would assist the oil and gas industry at large. My company, while not a petroleum producer per se, is nonetheless tethered to the industry as we maintain saltwater disposal permits and locations in West Texas. This downturn has been crushing to say the least as all plans moving forward have been put on hold indefinitely.

My questions are these: 1.) will the bill be comprehensive enough that it covers those like my company who are indirectly affected by the loss of business by producers, and 2.) will the federal government be purchasing (much like they did last week the oil for our national reserves) any drilling permits SWD permits or locations that otherwise will expire or are compromised as a result of this crisis, and 3.) what funds will the State of Texas set aside in addition to those being set aside by the federal government?

Best regards,
