Comments concerning draft rulemakings

The introduction to the proposed rule changes mentions that the current rules are 40 years old as if that is necessarily a bad thing. The responsibility of all citizens to operate their businesses in a prudent manner with due and proper regard to the potential of harm to others, whether by environmental damage or otherwise, has been recognized for much longer than 40 years. I could mention the constitution and the bible (or Koran if you prefer) and point out that change, for change's sake, is not a good way to operate. My family has lived in the Panhandle for 120 years and have owned agricultural land continuously. I have NEVER seen any permanent or even long lasting damage arising from a reserve pit in district 10. We should have an exemption from these proposed regulations wherever we can show by our water board letter that our fresh water is deep than 100 feet. We have clay soils and extremely limited percolation into the Oglalla freshwater formation as evidenced by the continued decline in water levels there.
